

From the MPAA's web site on the broadcast flag:

"We are hopeful that the broadcast flag will enable content providers to release more of their programming in HDTV format and drive the market forward providing new options for consumers."

My new option will be no more television; I can do without it. So, how does that help the content industry? It doesn't. They will have one less consumer.